Spike the hedgehog was in a fix. He'd spotted a large bag of slug fudge in his sister's bedroom and, when he had politely asked her if she was going to share it, she had told him it was for a present, a Mother's day present.

"Mother's day," he squealed. "Mother's day!"

His sister put on her best superior smile and her soft silky voice.

"Oh Spike, we haven't forgotten it's Mother's day have we?"

Spike thought hard, but had absolutely no idea what he should buy. His mind was a complete and utter blank.

"Come on Lucinda," he pleaded. "Give us an idea of what to get."

She smiled in that sister's not going to help you way and patted him, carefully, on the shoulder."

"Spikes a big boy," she purred. Why not think for yourself for a change!"

He wished that he'd thought of slug fudge, but it was oh so difficult choosing presents for parents. He thought long and hard and came up with... . absolutely nothing. In the end he decided to try and get some ideas by asking his friends what they had brought their mums for Mother's Day. So he rushed round and asked as many as he could, carefully writing down their answers on a scrap of old hymn book.

Later he sat down and read his list:-

Barnabas the mouse had got his mum, who was very old, a walking stick- it was made from a beautifully carved match-stick,

Cyril the tortoise, whose Mother was even older, had brought her a wax and polish at the local car valet centre.

Bacon the cat had got some fish-paste soap,

Sara the skunk had got a book on '101 hygiene tips with a free bottle of odour enhancer'

Henry the tarantula spider had got a video on do-it-yourself web design with eight projects to try.

Sammy the squirrel had got a painting of his mother's favourite tree house,

And Dolly the sheep had bought a two pairs of identical socks.

Spike finally arrived back in the church porch and read his list. Hmmm, thought Spike, my mum doesn't need a walking stick, hasn't got a shell to polish, doesn't wash with soap, only fresh water, doesn't smell, hates knitting, can't climb trees and never, ever, wears socks! So all that time and effort was wasted and mother's day was getting closer and closer.

On Saturday morning Spike rushed from shop to shop in a near panic. There had to be something he could buy, something just right for his mother. But after two whole hours of shopping he'd come up with exactly nothing. Not a thing, not an idea, not even a glimmer of an idea. He went into a nearby churchyard to rest and leant against the church door in the spring sunshine. Slowly the door opened and Spike could hear what was going on inside. Someone was praying and thanking God for all the things he had done as their Father in heaven, it was quite a long list and it set Spike thinking... and thinking.... and thinking.

Spike suddenly got up, nipped round to the Post Office and bought a large card with a picture of a daffodil on the front (his Mum loved eating flowers) and a blank inside. He found a quiet part of the churchyard next to the stinging nettles and began to write inside, in his very best handwriting just to please his mum

'Thank you Mum for being you,
For teaching me to skateboard on the church roof,
For trying to help me with my Maths homework
For showing me how to dig for the tastiest worms,
For nursing me through measles,
For letting me cook ant-burgers in your nice clean kitchen,
For washing all my dirty rugby gear every week,
For letting me stay up to watch the hedgehog rugby,
For

And he went on and on, listing all the things he had to thank his mother for, from keeping him safe to teaching him to sing the blues and finishing by saying that his mum was truly fantastic! Finally he put the card in it's large green envelope and hid it under the garden shed, to await Mother's day.

Mother's day breakfast together. Lucinda and Jennifer gave mum their bag of toffees; she was delighted, Dad gave her a special woolly cardigan to keep her spikes warm in winter and a large mug of hot-chocolate, she was ecstatic with joy. Everybody looked at Spike and he gave her the card. His Mum looked at him in a puzzled way, and then sat down and read it. As she read it a slow smile spread across her face until she was grinning from ear to ear.

“Thank you Son” she said “this is the best present you could have given me”

Spike grinned and blushed through his prickles, he was glad that he’d found a good present for his mum, and he was glad that he’d taken the trouble to thank his mother for all she’d done.

“Well mum” he said “are you going to share that fudge then” and they all laughed and tucked in to the slug flavoured fudge together.

Felburgh (2010)

Felburgh is the story of a vicar (Peter) and his life in a new parish; one that he has not chosen and that has not chosen him. The parish is set in seemingly idyllic Suffolk seaside town of Felburgh somewhere between Felixstowe and Aldeburgh. The parish, like most parishes, is only normal on the surface and has underlying tensions and vast social differences. The church itself has a third of a million pounds in the bank, some of the congregation are downright antagonistic and quite a few have interesting pasts. The church has previously seen a rapid succession of vicars, who have been driven out, escaped or just disappeared, this has left a legacy of distrust and discontent. Finally, like the Parish, the vicarage itself also has an interesting history, one which soon impinges on Peter's life and not necessarily for the better. All in all it's a mixture most vicars would run from, but Peter has no choice but to stay as he has nowhere else to go, so can he make a success of it or will history repeat itself once again?

Trembine Halt (2010)

Trembine Halt is a tiny Cambridgeshire village. Like most small villages the dozen inhabitants have their various foibles, but they have learnt to live together and support one another when necessary, even coping with the odd transitory interloper. However, lurking underneath are emotional hang-ups, hidden relationships, suicides and selfishness. All would remain as it was, except on one snowy day a freight train gets stuck in the village and the addition of the extra person starts off a train of events that will have long term repercussions.

Nocturnus (2010)

John Smith and Jane Doe (yes that's their real names) are ordinary people living separate lives. He as a peripatetic lecturer and she as a night-time cleaning manager. In the normal course of events their paths would probably never cross. However, some events are far from normal and the two get thrown together to dispose of a corpse.

The question is can they get away with it? Especially as it's not just the police after them.

But the story is more than just a simple tale of misdeed and misdemeanor. Jane leads her nocturnal life for very good reasons (well good to her) and John prefers to travel rather than stay at home for equally valid reasons (well valid to him.) So as their lives are forcibly intertwined are their reasons still valid or are they redundant?

The Face (2010)

Brian is the type of guy who likes to have everything cut and dried and his life on a well-ordered track. He's been in the same teaching job since leaving university and spends every summer holiday house-sitting for his cousin George. However, this summer, after seeing a woman's face in a supermarket, his life starts to change in ways he would never have contemplated. However, there is more to come and his well ordered life starts to spiral way out of control, the problem is that he rather begins to like it that way.

Botanago (2010)

Botanago refers to a mathematical formula, which is invented within a robotics company by an eccentric and irascible middle aged research engineer called Albert, who is not all he seems.

All would be well if they left him alone to think his mathematical thoughts, but in Jeddle Robotics lie people with ambition and downright managerial ruthlessness that Albert detests.

So while he strives to perfect his cherished formula, he must also deal with the rest of his life, and that is nowhere near as easy.

Ruth (2010)

Ruth is a runner with a unique sexual chemistry that combines in almost near perfection with the story-teller; but she says little and wants nothing else. However, as far as he is concerned this is enough, then the unexpected happens and life gets turned on it's head...

Bitter (2010)

Jim Tarrent and Jenn Tarrent are settling down to a new routine in their detective agency following their marriage.

They have the usual mix of cases, but also pick up a case for military intelligence involving two dead service personnel discovered in unusual circumstances while Jim (who still dreams of his army past) plugs away at solving a child hit and run mystery no matter what it costs.

However, both cases lead them into murky territory where simple objectives have morphed into potential scandals that no-one on high wants revealed.

Jims unusual evidence gathering skills and Jenn's organisation lead them further on than anyone else, but perhaps the outcome is not worth the trouble involved.

(Bitter is a sequel to 'Cold')

Sydney takes a stand (2011)

Sydney the frog only has a small muddy puddle as a home and now the council want to take it away - there comes a time when every frog has to make a stand. Unfortunately this time the stand is against a giant digger; can he survive?

Barnabus can Fly! (2011)

Barnabus the church mouse has got himself into a pickle again! He's been teaching the mouslets all about bats, but now he can't find one and his class are beginning to disbelieve him - can there be a solution?

Barnabus and the 'Swerve' (2011)

Barnabus has a lot on his mind; the church want to sell off their ancient pipe organ and he needs to find a way to beat the Red

Rodents at Mouse Volley ball. The answer could lie in something very different...
